STATE GETS 14-POINT PLAN

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASIBURN

WE hear much today about the crisis before state and local governments—and the need for sharp retrenchment—but in his biennial message to the legislature Tuesday Governor Futrell attacks the equally great problem of tax collections.

New Orleans Goes Into Receivership to Evade Kingfish

Federal Injunction Nullifies New Acts of Long's Legislature

LAWYER IS BITTER

State's Attorney Plays NRA, Judges and U. S. A. Generally

NEW ORLEANS.—(P)—New Orleans' city administration, Huey P. Long's arch political foe, executed a coup Monday that checked the Louisiana dictator's plan to tie up the city's funds through state courts, and threw all the municipality's financial affairs into federal court. The city wrenched its financial affairs from Long's grip by means of a recent act of congress permitting municipalities to readjust their indebtedness under federal provisions.

Following the federal court order dissolving a suit brought by Gov. O. K. Allen and Attorney General Gaston Porter, Long's lieutenants, to halt city disbursements and to determine the legality of handling of certain funds, it was announced by Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley that the city will be unable to borrow money to meet the semi-monthly pay roll Tuesday.

Officials Restrained
The city's petition Monday drew a double order from Judge Wayne G. French in federal court here. He first granted a petition seeking permission to adjust the city's finances under the congressional act, then issued an injunction restraining Governor Allen and Attorney General Porter from proceeding with their concourse suit.

The state suit had been set for hearing Tuesday in Civil District Court before Judge A. L. Ponder of Amite, where the action was carried from the Orleans district by a state Supreme Court order.

For nearly 10 days the city had been operating under a temporary injunction issued by Judge Ponder prohibiting disbursement of city funds except for pay rolls and material and supply purchases.

Judge Borah fixed April 11 as the date for submission by the city of a readjustment plan.

Approval of the city's action by its largest creditors made possible the federal court application. The act requires that 51 per cent of the debtors must agree. Four New Orleans banks holding approximately $5,000,000 of the city's paper, gave their approval.

The petition set out that the city owed the banks around $5,000,000 and approximately $600,000 in open accounts. It asserted that the city was solvent but unable to meet certain financial obligations. The time for paying amounts due banks, under the plan, will be extended for six months, Mayor Walmsley said.

FLEMINGTON, N. J.—(AP)—The defense Tuesday again brought the dead Isidor Fisch inferentially into the murder trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann with questions pointed toward a possible thesis that Hauptmann's handwriting was forged to the 14 Lindbergh ransom notes.

The questions were shot at John F. Tyrrell, of Milwaukee, after he had become the third of the state's battery of experts to identify Hauptmann's handwriting as that of the ransom notes.

The prosecution planned to introduce another surprise witness Tuesday to interrupt the tedious testimony of the handwriting experts. The state attorneys declined, however, to reveal the identity of the witness.

In the meantime, four witnesses—three women and a man—landed at New York, the quartet having come from Europe.

Cold Wave Hits Northern States

Snow Blocks Highways of Middle West, "Low" 32 Degrees Below

By the Associated Press
Winter's latest onslaught moved eastward across the Great Lakes states Monday night, sending the mercury sliding toward zero and bringing heavy snowfall.

In Minnesota, thermometer readings dropped as low as 32 below zero at Bemidji. It was only six degrees lower in Canada's coldest spot of the day, the outpost of Mooseport on an arm of Hudson's Bay in Ontario.

Two men died, one frozen and the other a traffic accident victim, in Minnesota and a 15-year-old youngster was found frozen to death in a shack at Sylvan, Ill., his body still unidentified Monday night.

Snow 10 inches deep blocked secondary highways in Wisconsin and Minnesota, and more snow was forecast for Tuesday.

North winds carried the cold wave into Michigan, Indiana and Ohio where temperatures from 5 to 15 above zero were predicted for Monday night. Light snow fell at Detroit, and two inches at Cleveland.

At Chicago a sudden drop in temperature to near zero froze slush into sheets dangerous for traffic. The suburbs, aloof from the moderating influence of Lake Michigan, reported temperatures down to 10 below zero.

State Story

The diagram illustrates the state's version of the matter in which Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., met his death: as the kidnaper carried the baby down the ladder after stealing him from his crib in the second-floor nursery of the Lindbergh home, the ladder broke, the child dropped to the ground and was killed instantly. Attorney General David Wilentz named Bruno Hauptmann as the man on the ladder.

600 See Opening of Cooking School

Conductor Jessie Hogue Begins Program Promptly at 2 p. m.

The seventh annual Hope Star Free Cooking School opened at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the Saenger theater with the largest first-day audience of its history.

There were 600 women in the theater by the time 3 o'clock rolled around, with more arriving every minute.

The 1935 conductor, Miss Jessie Hogue, was introduced to Hope housewives by Stanley E. White, advertising manager of The Star, and Miss Hogue started her lecture-demonstrations promptly.

The school opens at 2 o'clock every afternoon, through Friday, January 18, and runs until 4 o'clock.

Twelve food and home supply firms are co-operating with The Star in the 1935 school.

Nearly a hundred choice new recipes will be presented to Hope housewives by Miss Hogue during the four days, the recipes appearing on the printed program which is changed from day to day, and which can be had only at the theater.

Housewives are urged also to send their cooks to the school, the negro holiness of the Saenger being available as usual. It had a good attendance on the opening day.

Civilian Group for Aviation Planned

Would Supervise Peace-Time Flying and Fix Mail Rates

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Establishment of a permanent commission with supervisory powers over all civilian aviation, and authority to fix air mail rates was recommended Monday in a tentative report by President Roosevelt's special Aviation Commission.

The report also was reported to congress a recommendation for a string of frontier military aviation posts on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, Hawaii, Panama and Alaska.

Clark Howell Sr., of Atlanta, the chairman, led a commission to the White House where the study was presented to President Roosevelt. The president asked the commission to return later in the week, to permit him time to go over the survey.

The permanent commission for civilian aviation would be composed of five members.

Thirty anti-Nazi members of the police force were jailed, and search was continued for 90 others.

The application for the Saar's return will be made Wednesday in a resolution recommending this action in principle.

Germany to "Take Over"
BERLIN, Germany.—Germany has perfected every detail to enable the reincorporation of the Saar valley into the Reich within a month, Minister of the Interior Wilhelm Frick said Monday.

Frick, the National Socialist party's leader in the Reichstag when the Nazis were a scorned minority, declared a month would be more than the necessary time to accomplish the technical and administrative tasks involved.

The veteran associate of Adolf Hitler, as minister of the interior for both Prussia and the Reich, is charged with the details of absorbing once more the rich coal region, in anticipation of the plebiscite victory.

Takes Own Lunch, and Hotel's Angry

She Is None Other Than Mrs. Ogden Mills, Visiting Flemington

FLEMINGTON, N. J.—(AP)—Mrs. Ogden Mills, wife of the former secretary of the Treasury, brought her own lunch to the Hauptmann trial Monday and caused a Flemington flurry.

The box lunch incident took place in the Union hotel dining room, where the milk-coated Mrs. Mills and her pretty young daughter-in-law, Mrs. John Fell, opened their lunch and set out vacuum bottles.

A waitress, wide-eyed, called Walter Boyd, one of the hotel proprietors. "Look," said she, "they've brought their lunch with them."

Boyd walked over and explained. "Now, we're serving many people. We can't have you do that, please."

"Oh, we'll be here just two minutes," said Mrs. Mills. "And I'll pay for it."

"No, that's all right," said Boyd as he walked away.

Later Boyd said, "I was a little provoked. No one ever did that in my hotel before."

Mrs. Mills shook her head and would not comment.

Pension and Job Program Thursday

White House Has Social Security Plans Ready for Submission

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—President Roosevelt will submit his social security legislation proposals to congress Thursday morning.

The program for federal supervision of state-controlled unemployment insurance, old age pension and medical aid systems will be accompanied by the report of a special committee named by the president to study these subjects and make recommendations.

NRA Up to Court
WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Administration arguments for the constitutional validity of another New Deal high-spot, the NRA, went to the U. S. Supreme Court Tuesday as congressional leaders mapped out the job of translating into law President Roosevelt's new word of social security program.

Thursday was the day set by the White House for submitting to congress the program plans.

Top Pension $30
WASHINGTON.—(AP)—A three-way old age pension plan was contemplated Monday by President Roosevelt as he drafted his economic security program for congress. The report that went to the president from his cabinet committee was said authoritatively to recommend:

Joint federal-state contributions to enable those above 65 to maintain themselves at home.

A compulsory old age pension system for those under 65 to which employer and employee would contribute to a fund that would provide them with annuities after they pass 65.

A voluntary plan through which agricultural workers and those not employed in industries which fall under the compulsory plan might pay into a fund that would give them an annuity after they are 65.

The first arrangement was said to contemplate a sliding scale of pensions ranging up to $25 or $30 a month in cities, with smaller sums in small towns and rural communities. The federal and state governments would contribute to payment of these pensions, probably on a 50-50 basis.

The federal government would contribute only to those states with pension systems whose standards measure up to those laid down by congress. It was argued that it would be cheaper to provide a stipulated fund to enable old persons to maintain themselves in their homes than to move them to poor farms.

Contributions by employers and employees gradually would build up the reserve funds until aid from the federal and state governments could be withdrawn. This annuity system, however, probably would cover only the low wage groups, reaching up to a limit of incomes of about $2,000 a year.

Problem of 43,000 Unemployables Is Governor's Topic

Futrell Also Cites Need of State Aid for Old Age Pensions

ASKS STATE POLICE

Governor Proposes Sterilization of Habitual Criminal Class

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—Governor Futrell Tuesday took the oath of office for his second term as chief executive, after laying before the legislature a 14-point program in which he stressed the need for caring for the state's unemployables.

Immediately upon concluding his biennial message the governor took his new oath.

Governor's Message
LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—Financial relief for unemployables and the state's charitable institutions was asked of the legislature Tuesday by Governor Futrell, but at the same time he advised its membership "No money should be taken from the taxpayer except to supply an actual pressing necessity, statewide in its character."

The chief executive addressed a joint assembly of the legislature in his biennial address, and among many recommendations, declared, "there should be some district body created to recommend the allocation of federal road construction funds."

Stressing the "immediate need" for aid to unemployables whose care will become a state burden February 1, Governor Futrell recommended legislation for a duration of two years, and cautioned against an enactment of laws that would allow administrative costs to eat up relief funds.

Must Aid Unemployables
"I earnestly insist that the legislature give this immediate attention," he said. "The misery existing among the unemployables is frightful and is a disgrace to the state. They must be provided for to the extent of relieving actual misery. The state cannot excuse itself with doing less."

At least $300,000 annually was asked by Governor Futrell as supplementary aid to the State Hospital, Arkansas Tuberculosis Sanatorium, and the McRae Sanatorium for negroes.

He pointed out that additional funds for operation of the state hospital would be necessary when the new $3,000,000 plant is finished at Benton, and he advised also that the state hospital dairy farm east of Little Rock be maintained because he said the farm lands of the new institution were too poor to afford sufficient food crops for the 3,000 inmates.

Governor Futrell turned from a discussion of the needs of the public schools—called by many the state's most acute problem.

He refrained from recommending any specific form of aid, but declared that the state should pay the teachers of the grammar schools, and thus permit equal opportunities for education to all, poor and wealthy, alike.

Aid for Grade Schools
Inferentially, he said the state should not aid high schools since they contributed not more than 10 per cent of the eligible public school students. While a high school education for each student was desirable, he

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Emotions May Modify Feeling of Pain.

When a person complains of pain, don't ridicule him, don't ignore him. It may be quite serious.

Pain is a warning signal of a physical disturbance, although fear, anger, anxiety, and despair may modify it somewhat.

For example, the pain associated with a blow or a knife wound differs from that associated with a surgical operation. The pain, associated with a severe illness differs from the difficulty of breathing that comes from too much exercise.

The pain from a sudden violent blow may be accompanied by sensations of anger or fear of death. The pain from a sudden severe attack of the colic is likely to be accompanied by a feeling of anxiety. The pain of a toothache may produce simply a sense of suffering.

Another effect of pain is to change our perception of time. It is quite common to hear the sufferer say that every minute seemed like an hour. A wife whose husband was suspended by a live wire realized that the duration of the shock could not have been more than a couple of seconds, but it seemed to him "ages" until he lost consciousness.

The doctor who undertakes to treat a patient because of painful sensations must have a complete understanding of the nature of the pain. If he is to do his best in overcoming it, he must treat not only the physical condition responsible for the pain, but the associated mental factors.

It is interesting to see the ways in which different people describe pain. Some use terms relating to colors—violent pains giving a sense of whiteness; more intense pains, yellow and red; and dull headaches a sense of black. Pains also have been described as lightning-like and shooting; others as soft, dull, or blunt.

Physicians find that persons vary in their ability to describe their pains. Obviously, the doctor has to depend first on what the patient tells him, to learn about the place of the pain, its nature, and its intensity.

Doctors who take care of babies must find out for themselves whether the baby has pain, the nature of the pain, and its intensity.

There is an exact method of measuring the intensity of pain, and the amount of pain that may cause one person to suffer excruciatingly may hardly be noticed by another less sensitive person.

It is because of the inability to measure pain as it occurs in two different persons that it is difficult to measure the effects of various drugs and methods of treatment used to relieve pain.

We know that young people are more sensitive to pain than are older people, and most women are more sensitive to pain than are men. People who are deliberately nurtured and who have been carefully guarded during most of their lives suffer more from pain than those who have been brought up under less protective conditions.

Here's Fine Satire On Modern Society
—How Like an Angel! Is Both Funny and Pointed

"How Like an Angel," by A. G. Macdonell, is an hilarious and occasionally savage picture of modern society as it might look to a person who had never been prepared for its grotesque lunacies.

The book's hero is a lad who was cast away on a South Sea island as a baby and brought to manhood by three missionaries who were cast away with him. The missionaries brought him up according to the best pre-war standards, then, when a roving yacht finally touched at their island, they put him aboard, and sent him back to England.

Reaching England, the young man finds that he is a double for a famous moving picture star, who, with his actress-wife, is making a triumphal tour of Great Britain. The actor has disappeared, so the management gets

Cry Rises Up Against Race Gambling
—But Why Pick On Ponies?

This being the season of the stove league, one hears the annual barrage against gambling. This year, of course, the really heavy guns are being turned loose because of the legalization of horse racing in so many states, and the so-called sensational expose of widespread football betting.

"The rapid spread of betting," "Baltimore sucked dry by the horses," "Pay envelopes slaughtered at race tracks and bookie joints," are only a few of the expressions common upon the lips of reformers and those who woefully review a year of badly judged bets—you never heard of a successful gambler squawking, did you?

As for widespread increase in gambling, we must give a gentle, if derisive, sniff. Gambling is always with us, even as the poor. Prehistoric man listed gambling as one of his few arts, and many a set of bone dice has been found as well as other gambling devices.

Moreover, the gentlemen of our great colonial period greatly enjoyed gambling on their horses, pit dogs, and fighting chickens. Also, they gambled in such way as to make our $2 or even $50 bets seem like chicken feed.

So worthy a gentleman as John Randolph bet his entire estate as Virginia on the result of Eclipse's historic struggle against Henry, and another southern gentleman wagered no less than 200 negro slaves on the result.

And Duces Wild! Possibly, with bookie joints and race tracks operating, men in the city have forgotten the great old game of stud poker. But go to any small town and the boys in only moderate circumstances will show you a game of poker that will take your breath away. And plenty of women can show you how bridge is played for money.

So while football, baseball and racing may have diverted some money from the gambling tables, it is highly doubtful if they have increased wagering. A man can gamble on anything down to the production of the Drosophila fly if he is so inclined.

As for the argument that mutual betting sucks a community dry, it was no doubt invented by some avaricious gentleman whose reasoning was no better than his betting judgment. You know how it goes—if there is a million dollars to wager, the track will take out 6 per cent, and when the balance is rewaraged, the track will take out another rake, and so on, until the total is gone.

Now this sounds quite logical, and would be were it not for the fact that out of its "take" the track must pay purses, salaries, upkeep of the track, taxes on the property, and other expenses. And it is the strangest thing, but horses have a habit of translating money into hay, oats and straw, and owners, trainers, jockeys and handlers also seem to be able to get rid of their wages in a hurry.

Racing Adds Business. In most states a track cannot take more than 6 to 8 per cent of the money bet. This is regulated by law, and represents the track's fee for acting as a broker—bets being figured as a commodity.

But did you ever stop to think that most other commodities you buy, such as clothes, refrigerators, cars, food, new coats and thought it better not to guess at size.

Learns He's Comedian. He was acting like a jumping jack to my surprise. His cheeks were too red and his eyes too bright.

"What can you do when everybody laughs at him?" his mother sighed wearily. "It's going to take days to quiet him down."

And when she had a chance she told me. "Of course, he is funny; but he never knew it until today. He isn't afraid of an elevator, but when we started down from the fourth floor in Smith's he sang out, 'My tum-tum feels so funny.' And everybody roared."

"He picked it right up. He kept shouting that his tum-tum felt funny every time we got on anything. I couldn't find what I wanted and had to take him to three stores."

"And then the escalator at Brown's. He'd never seen one, but he was crazy about it. I couldn't get him off. He'd hop on it the second my back was turned, and I had to drop everything and follow."

Then Billy Gets Annoying. "Everywhere we went today he's had people in convulsions. He began shouting, 'Twinkle, twinkle little star' in the shoe store and yelled about his tum-tum. For the first time in his life he's found out that he can make people laugh."

"It's gone to his head." On the bus Billy began again, but he wasn't cute now. Just annoying. He got some black looks that chilled his enthusiasm. Finally he went to sleep.

That is the way with crowds. They recognize the unconscious and spontaneous humor of the baby, but they recognize just as quickly the self-conscious show-off, and it merely annoys them.

What happens in public can happen at home. We needn't look like old-man-gloom when these little people say and do funny things, but we shouldn't make too much fuss either, or call up Grandma and Uncle Harry and Aunt Lou to tell them that Jimmy said so-and-so. If we do we are merely gliding the lily, or drying up the fountain.

Nothing is as sweet as a natural little child, and nothing is as pathetic as one who has discovered it.

gamble, it seems just as well that they do it at race tracks. Moreover, any number of communities which have risen up in wrath test this fact.

And expelled the "bangtails" have found to their amazement that racing actually represents increased business. Lexington and Louisville can both attest this fact.

And, in case you're interested, you might look at the Maryland records. Right now Maryland is crying because other sections have cut down the quality of its racing, and more important, the volume of betting.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
ANN HOLLESTER breaks her engagement to TONY MICHIELE the same day that PETER KENNEDY tells VALERIA BENNETT, his fiancée, that everything is over between them. Ann thinks she still loves Tony and Peter believes he still cares for Valeria, but when chance brings the two together and Peter tells Ann to marry him she agrees.

They go to Florida, and are hired as governesses for the children of MRS. TRACY, an artist. ALIAN VINCENT, Mrs. Tracy's brother, is attracted to Ann. Through him Ann learns that Peter is furnishing a house, her and marry Valeria. Ann leaves the Tracy's.

She goes to work in a book store. One day she meets Allan and he persuades her to drive home with him for dinner. When they arrive he admits his sister is not there. Ann realizes she has been tricked but she still loves him. The driver recognizes her and communicates with her. When they arrive Ann has disappeared again.

She becomes ill and goes to Peter's home in Florida for a brief rest.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XLVII
THERE had been consternation among the tenants at Peter's Florida grove when Ann arrived from the nearest railroad station—alone.

"When's Mr. Peter coming?" Lena asked.

"Not for some time," Ann told her. "I haven't been well and only came to rest for a few weeks. After a while, when I'm stronger, I'm going away," her voice faltered, "going away."

"Something's wrong," Lena said dubiously to Sam. "It don't seem natural, her tramping' way down here without him."

"It ain't," Sam agreed. Lena knew her "spicions" were correct when Ann called to her one morning. When Lena came out on the porch, Ann asked, "Does Sam ever write to Mr. Peter?"

"Yes, Miss Ann. When things don't go so good, and when they does."

"Please ask him not to write for several weeks—until I leave. Or, if he does, ask him not to mention that I am here."

The trouble between Miss Ann and Mr. Peter was discussed freely at Sam's home. And Marie's sister Corita, who had been brought to assist about the house and sleep there at night, had more tales which added to the general uneasiness.

Corita told of hearing Ann sobbing at night. "If he don't come soon, maybe she won't be here," Corita said in her quaint foreign speech.

"Why?" Juan queried. "Because she's very sick." Juan brooded over that. Ann had completely won his heart.

All of his tricks had failed to divert her. He had plunged into the lake, making alligator trails. He had told Ann about the Seminoles who had lived here once, making arrowheads from the flint at the bottom of the lake. He showed her the new mocking bird's nest in the trellis, and pointed out another nest in the tree near her room. But he was not satisfied with the pale little smile Ann gave him.

So one night he painstakingly, laboriously, constructed a message to Peter.

The receiver clicked in his ear. PETER sat down and gave himself up to his unhappy, brooding thoughts.

Until recently Ann had been here in the city. Now she was really lost to him. The detectives had reported the trail had been lost.

Sunset

I saw the day lean o'er the world's sharp edge,
And peer into night's chasm, dark and damp.
High in his hand he held a blazing lamp.
Then dropped it, and plunged head-long down the ledge.
With lurid splendor that swift faded to gray,
I saw the dim skies suddenly flush bright.
'Twas but the expiring glory of the light
Flung from the hand of the adventurous day.—E. W. W.

The Hope Garden Club will hold their January meeting Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Dorsey McRae on East Third street. Mrs. J. A. Henry will lead the program. A full attendance is urged as January is a very important month for different plantings.

The Alabamian and Glensides classes of the First Baptist Sunday school will meet at 7:30 Tuesday evening at the church for their regular monthly business and social meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Gibson Sr., Mrs. Annie McWilliams and their guests, Rev. and Mrs. Oscar Gibson of Louisville, Ky., spent Tuesday with relatives and friends in Dallas, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Lewis left Tuesday for a few days' visit with Mr. Lewis' father and other relatives near Heber Springs.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the First Methodist church held their January meeting at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon at the church. The meeting was opened by Mrs. O. A. Graves, the retiring president, and following the singing of a familiar hymn, the new officers were installed by Dr. Fred Harrison, pastor. "Faith" was the keynote of Dr. Harrison's impressive address to the new officers in regard to their work for the new year. His scripture references were from the fourth chapter of Matthew dealing with the many temptations overcome by Jesus. A very beautiful vocal selection was given by Miss Harriet Story, with Mrs. R. T. White accompanying. The treasurers report disclosed that all indebtedness of the Society had been paid in full. Following the reading of the minutes, the count of members present showed a splendid representation from each circle. Mrs. W. G. Allison, Chairman for "The World Outlook," with one of her characteristic talks, opened her campaign for subscriptions. The new president, Mrs. Frank Stanley made a very interesting talk and strong appeal for the cooperation of all members.

Sister MARY'S KITCHEN

Buckwheat Pancakes are Easily Digested

A steaming plate of tender buckwheat cakes, topped by a pool of golden butter and flanked by a big pitcher of honey or maple syrup and a cup of fine coffee! What's wrong with that picture for a cold winter morning?

I don't need any figures about the heat-producing qualities of buckwheat cakes to make me feature them on the family breakfast table these frosty mornings. They have proved themselves with me without aid of laboratory statistics, for I was brought up on them.

One bit of statistical lore, however, did interest me. The scientists have found that buckwheat is not indigestible—that if the average person suffers from eating the cakes, it's because he has had too many, too well syruped and buttered.

Cakes made with yeast are more wholesome than those made by the quick method, but the average healthy person can eat temperately of either type.

If your family prefers a toast-and-coffee breakfast, have your buckwheat cakes for luncheon, accompanied by country sausage, at its savory best just now.

Yeast Buckwheat Cakes

One-half cake compressed yeast, 1/2 cup lukewarm water, 3 more cups warm water, 3 cups buckwheat flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons sugar, 1 teaspoon soda.

Scften yeast cake in 1/2 cup lukewarm water. When thoroughly dissolved add salt, sugar and 2 1/2 cups warm water. Add buckwheat flour and mix until perfectly smooth. Cover and let stand in warm place overnight. In the morning dissolve soda in remaining half cup of water and beat into batter. Let stand five or ten minutes and bake on a hot well greased griddle. The batter should be quite thin—runny enough to spread on the griddle. Buckwheat cakes require a hotter griddle than corn cakes or wheat cakes.

Some of the batter can be saved and used as a "starter" for another baking instead of using a fresh yeast cake. They are even better after the first day as the seed seems to ripen and produce a better cake.

Quick Buckwheat Cakes

One and one-half cups buckwheat flour, 3/4 cup wheat flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 5 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 tablespoon melted shortening, 1 egg, 2 1/2 cups milk.

Mix dry ingredients. Add milk slowly, stirring constantly to make smooth. Add beaten egg and beat until blended. Add melted shortening and beat. Bake on a hot well greased griddle. A little more milk may be needed because buckwheat absorbs more liquid than other grains.

ties for funds when only enough for three per cent of them was available.

"The legislature might prescribe rules to govern the apportionment," he said. "It may classify the roads designating the class to have priority. It may designate the roads themselves that should have priority, or it may have a body representative of each section to make the allocations. The advantage of this plan is greater direct representation. The body could sit with representatives of the U. S. Bureau of roads in making the allocations. Not many days would be required. The body would be much more numerous than the ordinary commission. Their actual expense would be inconsequential if they could satisfy. The highway commission should furnish all plans and specifications and other needed data for use, and would approve the allocations made by the body. The difficulties are apparent.

"A policy of distribution of construction funds should be declared. A yard stick, so to speak, should be furnished. Those who have carefully considered the question agree that the following factors should control:

1. Population.
2. Area.
3. Automobile and gasoline fees.
4. Uniformity or equal shares to each county.
5. Traffic density.
6. Total public road mileage for county, or post road mileage.

"If the legislature will lay down the factors to be considered and the percentage of consideration to be given, each of the several counties may know what to expect. This will prevent arbitrary distribution. Of course, any proposed distribution of federal funds is subject to the approval of the U. S. Bureau of Roads. I am advised that 75 per cent of the last allotment of federal road aid funds was dictated by the U. S. Bureau."

Amend Tax Sale Law

A revamping of the laws on tax sales of land and publication of the list of personal property delinquents was recommended by the governor to prevent evasion of the property tax laws.

Laws for collection of personal property taxes is adequate, Governor Futrell said, but added that "the trouble is that it is not being enforced. After the collector has made his settlement with the county court, the delinquent list of personal property should be published in some paper having a circulation which will give notice to all reading people who had failed to pay. This will disclose who is dodging taxes, and the extent of same. Public sentiment then will do much to correct this wrong."

He recommended that the law governing tax sales should be so amended as to make such a sale not voidable except for specified substantial reasons.

Betty Gow's Ordeal on Stand

State Police Force

The governor made his recommendations for a state police force, to be chosen by the governor from a list of those whose applications as to fitness had been proved. They would be subject to discharge only for cause.

Political activity would be a cause, Governor Futrell said, and he added that the force should be divorced from all possible political encroachment.

"In consideration of this subject," he told the legislature, I advise you that if you cannot divorce the organizations from pernicious political influence, no not create it. It should not be within the power of the governor or any other authority to destroy or convert it from the high public purposes for which it was created."

The increase in crime, described by the governor as alarming, calls for "stopping at its source" the spread of the evil, and he recommended a law for the sterilization of the habitual criminal.

A revision of the criminal code, in line with the recommendations being formed by a committee of the Arkansas Bar Association, also was asked by the governor.

Staff agencies to work with the government in refunding of levee and street improvement districts, as well as school district indebtedness, was recommended by Governor Futrell, who called attention also to President Roosevelt's request for a law that would afford legal co-operation between the state and the federal government in the recovery relief programs.

Legislation looking toward co-operation with federal legislation for old age pensions also was asked by Governor Futrell.

Election Reform

Legislation designed to prevent fraudulent elections was recommended by the chief executive, with the specific recommendations being: A secret ballot, open voting, the right of challenge, that the results at the polling places be ascertained and declared before the judges and clerks have separated, the right of inspection of ballots, the use of duplicate ballots, registration of voters, additional restrictions upon the issuance of poll tax receipts, and that election contests be tried by some circuit judge not a resident of the district in which it is filed.

A law designed to prevent "bribe slinging" in political campaigns also was asked.

Calling fire insurance rates in Arkansas the "highest in the Union," Governor Futrell advised the legislature to revise the law to restrict over-insurance, as a remedy.

He said the cause of so many destructive fires in Arkansas were laid by authorities to incendiarism, and recommended that an agency be set up to rate the risks and fix rates of insurance on buildings, and that not more than the amount of the loss be collectable on fire insurance policies.

Co-ordination of the work of the State Forestry Commission, the State Park Commission, and the Arkansas Game and Fish Commission, was recommended through measures he will later send to the legislature.

Governor Futrell praised the work of the Civilian Conservation Corps camps in Arkansas, the program of park improvement launched by the President, and declared that ample provisions should be made for maintenance of state parks in the future.

A state forest nursery capable of furnishing tree seedlings for replenishment of the lumber resources was sponsored by the governor.

The legislature was asked by Governor Futrell to make "adequate provision" for pensions for Confederate veterans.

"It will not be long before the last of these veterans will have bid us a

Negro Vote Put Up to Supreme Court

Review Is Granted From Texas, Although Only $10 Involved

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The supreme court agreed Monday to pass on the contention of R. R. Grovey, Harris county, Texas negro, that he was prevented from voting at Democratic primaries in that state.

He asked a review even though the case had not been decided by the highest state court and the suit was only for $10 damages, which gives no right of appeal.

Grovey asserted he was qualified under state laws to vote as a member of the Democratic party.

At the Democratic primary election in July, 1934, he said he was prevented by Albert Townsend county clerk, from voting by being denied a ballot.

Grovey added the state democratic convention in 1932 had restricted the right to vote at primaries of that party to white citizens.

He brought suit against Townsend for $10 damages in a justice court and lost.

The supreme court has declared invalid a Texas statute which prohibited negroes from voting at Democratic elections. Since then the same results have been sought by action of the Democratic party organization in the state.

"Two-by four federal boards trying to run the country" before the state Supreme Court.

Wilkinson, defending the constitutionality of the reorganization act which gives the Long administration control of the board, interpolated his remarks with the observation that "the Blue Eagle is the badge of slavery, not of freedom," and declared that "Stalin, Mussolini and Hitler would turn green with envy if they knew the things they get away with in this country."

Wilkinson's remarks were by way of saying broad legislative authority has become the order of the day.

Guernsey Breaks Even With Emmet

Boys Win 16 to 14—But Emmet Girls Are Victors 11 to 7

Guernsey High School split a double-header basketball game with Emmet Saturday night at the armory building in Hope. Guernsey boys won, 16 to 14. Guernsey girls' team lost, 11 to 7.

Both contests were hard-fought and thrilling throughout the entire periods. In the boys game, Guernsey took a lead at the start and maintained it throughout the first half. Emmet came from behind to tie the score in the third quarter and then forged one point ahead. Emmet's center was ruled out of the game for excessive fouling which gave Guernsey a big advantage at the pivot position. Guernsey came from behind in the last few minutes to win. The victory was the 14th of the season for Guernsey against only two defeats.

Coach Bristow's lads will meet two teams from Washington Friday afternoon on the outdoor court at Guernsey.

with Germany.

As the first step in Great Britain's effort to bring Germany back into the fold at Geneva, the cabinet decided the League Council should make all possible haste in returning the Saar to Germany. The cabinet hopes this territory may be reunited with the Reich within the next few days if possible.

Although, under the treaty of Versailles, the League has the right to split up the Saar, retaining districts which give a majority of their votes in favor of the "status quo" or even giving districts to France if any voted that way, it was stated officially that the cabinet would oppose such division as "impractical."

Hold Key to Island Mystery

Somewhere in the vast wastes of the South Pacific, those two vanished persons hold the key to the mystery of Marchena Island, where the bodies of two men were found dead of hunger and thirst on the beach. This picture of Baroness Eloise Bosquet de Wagner Wehrhorn and Robert Philipson was found on the body of Rudolph Lorenz, her former lover, one of the men found dead on Marchena as a tragic ending of a story of love in a primitive colony in the lonely Galapagos Islands.

Dillinger Yawyer Given Acquittal

Jury Frees Piquette as Within Attorney's Legal Rights

CHICAGO — (AP) — John Dillinger's lawyer Monday night was acquitted of a charge of conspiracy to harbor him. It took a federal court jury only three hours and 42 minutes to agree that Louis Piquette, one time city prosecutor, was within the rights of an attorney in his dealings with the late desperado.

The jury reached its verdict at 9:4 p. m. and returned it in open court shortly after 10 p. m.

The acquittal came after Piquette made an impassioned plea, maintaining that the only relation he ever had with Dillinger was that of attorney and client. Federal Judge William Hally, in charging the jury, said:

"When Dillinger escaped and came to Chicago and got in touch with Piquette, it did not become the duty of the defendant to turn him over to police."

The government, however, charged that Piquette entered into a conspiracy with James Brohasco, since a suicide, two doctors and his aide to hide Dillinger while facial operations were performed in an effort to disguise the gangster.

The doctors admitted the operations and testified that Piquette paid them. The lawyer insisted he had nothing to do with plot, adding that the only money he ever obtained from Dillinger was simple legal fees.

The defeat was one of the first the government has suffered in its drive to jail those accused of harboring Dillinger and his henchmen. Already about a dozen persons are serving sentences for harboring persons accused of federal crimes and nearly a score are awaiting trial.

The last session of the week-old trial was marked by the collapse of one of the defense attorneys and Piquette's fiery exclamation to the jurors:

"I wish to God I had never seen John Dillinger."

"Oh, but you are," said his friend. "Remember your father. He was always neatly dressed. His clothes were always well tailored and of the best material."

Oklahoma Bank Is Held Up by Five

Bokehito Institution Robbed of $550—Thugs Escape to Hills

BOKEHITO, Okla. — (AP) — A gang of five men robbed the First State Bank here Monday of $550 and escaped in the hills east of here after eluding a posse of officers and armed citizens.

Three of the men entered the bank and waited for 15 minutes for a number of customers to leave before they drew pistols, menacing two employees of the bank, one a woman, and three customers, including Mayor S. E. Loveless.

The other two men remained in the bank's car in front of the bank. Forcing the three customers and Mrs. H. M. Wilson, bookkeeper, to lie on the bank floor, the robbers then forced Cashier R. F. Moreland to place the $550 in a sack they were carrying.

After securing the money, they locked the five in the bank vault, ran to their car, parked in front of the bank, and sped away, pursued by the posse.

HOLLYWOOD GOSSIP

Reno Helps Recovery of Ann Harding

HOLLYWOOD — Here's some welcome news—Ann Harding is making rapid strides toward a complete recovery of health.

This, coming from Reno, where the famous actress has obtained full custody of her 6-year-old daughter, Jane, makes it unusual news, too, since the Nevada capital is famous primarily for its heartaches and broken romances.

When Ann finished "Biography of a Bachelor Girl" a few weeks ago, she was so near a breakdown that her physician ordered her to rest for the next six months. She wasn't even to go near a movie studio, much less in one.

The actress decided to spend the first part of her enforced vacation in Reno, while she pressed her suit for the full custody of her daughter. According to the terms of her divorce decree, secured there in 1932, Jane was to remain with her mother for ten months each year and spend the other two months with her father, Harry Bannister. Now, by latest decree, Jane stays with her mother all year around.

Since her arrival in the Nevada city, Miss Harding has been taking five-mile hikes in the crisp winter air every day. As a result, her health has improved so rapidly that she expects to be able to return to work by March 1—Provided a story is ready for her then.

She still has two pictures to do on her present contract with RKO. However, as yet the studio hasn't even one story for its blond star, although executives state that one will be ready by the time Miss Harding returns from Reno next month.

Old-Fashioned
Edna May Oliver is so fond of keeping her feet on the ground that she steadfastly has refused to go up in an airplane, even for picture purposes.

In fact, every contract she signs contains a clause stipulating that she will not be asked to fly.

The other day, while she was appearing in some ground scenes on a plane for "Murder on a Honeymoon," the pilot raced the motors to turn the plane around. Miss Oliver, thinking she had been "framed," became so panic-stricken that she jammed her umbrella right through one of the windows.

Mae West's Boudoir
If you can remember back as far as Mae West's first picture, "She Done Him Wrong," you may remember that her bedroom somewhat resembled a float in a Pasadena Rose Parade. However, now that she has become a lady for her next film, "Now I'm a Lady," her boudoir will be decidedly different.

The whole room is done in pale peach with red trimmings. Placed on pedestals all around the room will be statues holding candles. And in the midst of all this will be a most luxurious-looking bed 10 feet long by 7 feet wide—probably so that the Indian she has been seeking for so long can pitch his tepee in one corner of it.

Wanted, a Gentleman
Wynne Gibson now steps forth and joins the ranks of our feminine charmers who think there is considerable to be desired of Hollywood men. The other day, while she was dashing home from a beauty shop, Wynne's car stalled right in the middle of an intersection, forcing her to get out and push the machine over to the curb. And not one of the men who banked their horns so impatiently offered to help the little lady out of her distress.

Hollywood Gossip
Mae Clarke is back from her two month's sojourn in Palm Springs, completely recovered from the nervous breakdown that sent her to a sanitarium last May.

Louise Rainer, brunet actress who has been a sensation in Europe for the last year, will arrive here in about two weeks to start work on her M-G-M contract.

Chick Chandler will pull out for Broadway to do a show as soon as his RKO contract expires in March.

Both contend it doesn't mean a thing, but Tom Brown has been taking Ann Shirley to lunch more and more frequently of late.

Alden Chase has a new mascot, a tiny Australian bear cub.

Jackie Cooper soon will be an honest-to-goodness tenderfoot Boy Scout. At the last meeting of his troop, he finished learning to tie all nine of the knots required in the tenderfoot test.

J. C. Nugent is one man who takes orders from his son without so much as a murmur of protest. His son, Elliott, now is directing him in "Win or Lose."

The windows and skylight of Edmund Goulding's Palm Springs home are made of a new violet ray type of glass so that his invalid wife may enjoy every possible benefit from the desert sunshine.

Roosevelt Determines to Make This Request of Congress

Jesse Jones, chairman of the RFC, after a talk with the president announced this decision and said that very little, if any additional funds would be needed.

Loans are being repaid fast enough, he explained, to meet demands for new borrowings. In fact, Jones expressed a little concern at the rapidity of the repayments.
